1. Although a new <sup>F</sup>ederacion Estudiantil Universitaria (FEU) president at the University of Habana was to have been elected in August* to succeed Enrique Ovaras, a series of incidents has postponed elections in two of the thirteen schools at the University of Habana. These two schools now have provisional presidents, which has delayed the election of a University Council.
2. The recent police raid at the University of Habana School of Agronomy** following a gang killing resulted in the arrest of Jose Dujan, a candidate for the FEU presidency and President of the School of Agronomy. Orlando Bosch, President of the School of Medicine, and Baudilio Castellanos, President of the Law School, were also detained after the killing of Gustavo Mejia, who was President of the Alumni Association.
3. [redacted] students of the schools affected will have to call meetings to ratify the position of the provisional presidents and to take some action concerning those schools where the president has been placed under police detention.
4. Communists reportedly have two strong candidates for the FEU presidency in Walter Carbonell, a colored student of the Law School, and Lionel Soto, President of the Philosophy and Literature School.
